- yellow in the unripe stage, light brown in the semi-ripe stage, and dark brown in the fully ripe stage
- have a bitter taste when they are not ripe

Piarom date

- It has a mild sweet taste
- Compared to other dates, it has less moisture and is known as a soft date without moisture
- This date is one of the best-selling dates
- The thin skin of this date is dark brown and its flesh and skin are completely attached to each other

Mazafati date

- Mazafati dates have between 20 and 25% moisture
- These dates have a soft and juicy texture
- The skin of this date is black, shiny, smooth and thin and easily separated from the date flesh
- This date has a high export, and the largest export of these dates is for Muslims in the month of Ramadan

Sayer date

- Sayer (estamaran) dates are classified as semi-dry dates with low moisture content (less than 18%)
- This date has a dark brown color
- Estamaran or “Sayer” date is the most popular and best-selling Iranian date
- It has the largest amount of exports

Rabi date

- This date has little moisture
- Due to its low moisture content, Rabi dates are considered to be long-lasting dates and have easy storage conditions
- its sweetness is less compared to Mazafati dates and it is suitable for those who like dates with moderate sweetness

Zahedi date

- This date has little moisture and is classified as a semi-dry date
- The shape of this date is elongated oval and its end is quite narrow and pointed
- The fruit is yellow in the unripe stage, light brown in the semi-ripe (moist) stage, and reddish-brown to pale yellow in the fully ripe stage (dates)
